

Calling all nature-lovers, scientists and budding photographers!

Explore nature. Take photos. Help science. Sound good?

Join one of the world's top "QuestaGame" players Cameron Rodda at Lake Pertobe on Saturday November 30 at 1pm for an introduction to this fun form of citizen science.

QuestaGame tasks you with finding and taking photos of wild animals, birds and plants. You then upload those photos via the QuestaGame mobile app or website and score points. The rarer the find, the more points you get!

You can choose to make your photos available in places like the CSIRO's Atlas of Living Australia and help professional scientists working in the field.

Who knows what you'll find? New species have even been discovered by QuestaGame players!

It's a fun game for families that combines fresh air, photography and an appreciation of our natural environment.

The Wild Warrnambool BioQuest is a challenge within QuestaGame to better understand Warrnambool's biodiversity.

It's free to play and there are plenty of great prizes up for grabs. All you need is a camera, whether that's the camera on your iPad or the latest release from Nikon.

If you're keen to come along on this guided walk with Cameron, learn the ropes of QuestaGame and pick up some expert tips please RSVP to green@warrnambool.vic.gov.au.
